All calves and 80% of the adult heifers recovered, while all but one of the untreated cases died. The extracts of P. indicus contained no cholesterol and no pterocarpin, however they did contain a pterocarpan, which was purified and identified as pterocarpin. Fistulas are an unusual complication of reconstructive and urological surgery for genital and perineal trauma in children. The most common fistula in children occurs at the site of a surgical colostomy. Non-traumatic fistulas are more common in children. Most fistulas are evident shortly after surgery and the diagnosis is commonly based on local findings. Drainage of a fistula is confirmed by the presence of bilious and purulent fluid. Detection and management of a fistula in children are complex because of the need to prevent further infection and incontinence while preserving genital function. Serbian police have arrested two women who were accused of performing satanic rituals and using witchcraft on a seven-year-old girl. Around 100 officers raided the house in the capital Belgrade on Tuesday after her parents reported their daughter's bizarre behaviour. The girl was found reading an opened copy of the book 'The Thirteen Gates of the Kingdom of Darkness', the investigators said. Earlier this year, the child had also prayed to the devil, asking him for something and said that she would burn herself and kill others after she said a prayer. The cops said the girl's parents were "friends" and that they had called for the police when the girl's behaviour first began to change. Police in the South African province of Limpopo have arrested two brothers for allegedly killing a three-year-old girl with witchcraft. According to reports, the police began their investigation after the child's parents, worried about the child's health, took her to a traditional healer. Both suspects had complained that they had been using sorcery against the girl, who died on Sunday. They had told the parents that she had been possessed by evil spirits. In another case, a four-year-old girl had to be killed after she was accused of practising witchcraft in several Southern African provinces. The suspect had been arrested by the regional police, but no formal charges had been pressed at that time. According to a report by the Daily Telegraph, the four-year-old girl had to be killed because she had been "violently kicked and smacked with a stick while being accused of practising witchcraft".
